The MMPI-2:

A T score of 65 on the clinical scales divides the clinical from the non-clinical population. Mr. Lester's profile falls within the Questionable Validity range of clinical usefulness. Psychological Evaluation either deliberate exaggeration or a tendency to respond "true". L, F, and K T-scores were: 43, 70, and 37.

Clinical Scale T-Scores:

Hs	73	Pd	69	Pt	94	Si	84
D	95	MF	60	Sc	84
Hy	86	Pa	79	Ma	47

Individuals with this profile are tense, nervous, and depressed. They have a high need for achievement and recognition but dread the pressures of increased responsibility. However, they also feel guilty about not achieving goals. They are also perfectionistic and conscientious and may be excessively religious or moralistic. They feel unhappy, sad, and worry to an excessive degree. They anticipate problems and overreact to minor matters. They seek excessive nurturance from others and are overly dependent due to feelings of inadequacy, insecurity, and inferiority. They tend to be docile and passive-aggressive in relationships and lack appropriate assertiveness skills. They brood and ruminate and report somatic symptoms such as fatigue, exhaustion, weight problems, slowed speech, and slowed thinking. They feel vulnerable to imagined threats as well as to real threats. They are quite rigid in their thinking but are usually motivated for psychotherapy. Typical diagnoses for this profile: depressive disorders; anxiety disorders; obsessive-compulsive disorder.

BEHAVIORAL OBSERVATIONS: Mr. Lester was on time for his appointment. His sister drove him to the clinic. He is five feet, seven inches tall and weighs 280 pounds. He was clean in hygiene and wore jeans and a red tee shirt. He had short, black hair and a trimmed beard (he said he trimmed in the night before because he was afraid he would be pulling on it during the examination as he tends to do that when especially nervous) and brown eyes. He used a cane to assist in walking and balance. He was alert and fully oriented. He exhibited pain behaviors and appeared physically uncomfortable during the examination. He related well, made good eye contact, and affect and conversation were appropriate to the setting. He did not exhibit speech oddities or bizarre mentation and denied symptoms of psychosis and paranoia when questioned. He denied active suicidal and homicidal ideation. He was pleasant and cooperative with the examination.

PERSISTENCE AND EFFORT: Good. He started to give up on one Block Design task before time limits had expired but was persuaded to continue.

SELF-MONITORING OF ERRORS: He recognized errors but had some difficulty in correcting them quickly enough to get credit on the more difficult block design tasks.

ORGANIZATIONAL AND PLANNING SKILLS: Fair.

METHODOLOGY: Both conceptual and trial-and-error.

VALIDITY CONSIDERATIONS: He has been tested previously with essentially similar results although he did better on the verbal tasks on the current examination. His motivation and cooperation were sufficient for valid results.

DIAGNOSTIC IMPRESSIONS:

Axis I. PAIN DISORDER ASSOCIATED WITH PSYCHOLOGICAL FACTORS AND MEDICAL CONDITION
ANXIETY DISORDER, NOS
DEPRESSIVE DISORDER, NOS

Axis II. R/O LEARNING DISORDER-SPELLING

SUMMARY: Christopher Lester is a 31 year old man who is operating within the Average range of intellectual functioning. He has likely always functioned within this range. He reported becoming depressed and anxious after the March 10, 2000 injury and remains under outpatient psychiatric treatment with Dr. Riaz U. Riaz. He was awarded SSDI benefits in August of 2001 and does not appear motivated for vocational rehabilitation (file closed due to claimant's lack of desire to participate). Mr. Lester does not feel that he is able to work at anything due to pain and not being able to tolerate sitting, standing, or walking for more than twenty minutes at a time.
